What does the term “locum tenens” mean?

“Locum Tenens” is a Latin phrase which translates to mean “to hold a place.” A locum tenens physician is one who temporarily fills a gap in medical staff or fills in for another physician while he or she is out on vacation, maternity leave or professional training.

Do I have control over the location(s) where I would work assignments?

Having freedom of choice and flexibility is what attracts physicians to do locum tenens. The more flexible you are about possible locations where you would work, the more opportunities we can present for consideration. You are an independent contractor and completely free to determine the direction of your career (how often you work, where you work and how long you work).

Why should I consider working locum tenens?

Physicians choose to work this path for many reasons, including lifestyle preferences, trying out different practice styles and settings, income potential, and geographic locations. Residents and early career physicians generally are still searching for the right fit, while physicians in mid-career may be transitioning or bridging the gap on income, and seasoned physicians are looking to scale back their practice but might not be ready to retire from medicine and want to keep their skills sharp.

How does LocumConnections pay contract locum tenens workers?

Being a 1099 independent contractor or locum tenens physician or healthcare provider allows for competitive compensation which is typically based on either hourly shifts or daily rates. Providers are paid every two weeks for services rendered, with medical liability insurance, travel and lodging expenses being covered by LocumConnections. As an independent contractor, federal and state taxes are not withheld as you will file a 1099.

Does LocumConnections provide employment benefits to locum tenens professionals?

Although there are many advantages to working locums tenens, you are an independent contractor and not an employee, and as such not eligible for any benefits including social security payments, workers' compensation insurance, unemployment insurance or group health insurance.

Why should I consider LocumConnections?

Unlike outside staffing firms, we operate in the clinical healthcare space. Our leaders are physicians and executives who have experience and know-how in healthcare management. This unique differentiator has earned us credibility and trust among the many healthcare organizations for whom we provide physician staffing. They know they can rely on us to deliver better doctors than the mainstream locum tenens firm because our doctors like us come from the actual hospital practice world. And the doctors who work with us share the benefit of our outstanding reputation in the industry.
